Attorneys Norris hang own shingle

Published July 7, 2004 by Elizabeth Ramsey

Nashville attorneys John L. Norris and Christina "Chris" Norris have announced the formation of a new law firm, Norris & Norris, PLC.

John Norris practiced civil litigation with Hollins, Wagster & Yarbrough for 23 years, while wife Chris formerly held a solo practice in addition to serving as a legal writing instructor at Vanderbilt University since 1999.

Already community activists, the husband and wife team hopes the formation of their new firm will allow them to professionally impact issues that are important to them personally. The practice of Norris & Norris will focus on civil trials including personal injury, nursing home neglect, employment, environmental and commercial disputes, and elder law.

John additionally serves on the Greenways Commission, is immediate past president of Greenways for Nashville, and is a director of Walk/Bike Nashville. Chris was the first female Clerk & Master in Chancery Court and a founding member of the Lawyer's Association for Women. She is the current chair of the Capital Needs Committee of the School Board and representative of District 9 to the Metro School Board.
